

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
PENSACOLA DIVISION

IN RE: 3M COMBAT ARMS
EARPLUG PRODUCTS
LIABILITY LITIGATION

Case No. 3:19md2885

This Document Relates to:
Estes, 7:20cv137
Hacker, 7:20cv131
Keefer, 7:20cv104

Judge M. Casey Rodgers
Magistrate Judge Gary R. Jones

PRETRIAL ORDER NO. 64
Trial Time Allocation For The First Bellwether Trial

In this order, the Court sets time limits regarding the upcoming consolidated bellwether trial in the Estes, No. 7:20cv137; Hacker, No. 7:20cv131; and Keefer, No. 7:20cv104, cases, which is set for trial on March 29, 2021.

The Court has discussed the matter of time limits for trial with counsel for the parties and has decided that setting reasonable limits on the amount of time allowed for the parties to present their claims and defenses will prevent delay, ensure efficient presentation of the evidence and arguments, avoid unnecessary, cumulative, and repetitive evidence and arguments, and minimize undue burden on the jurors. It is well-established that a court has the authority to impose reasonable time limits on the parties at trial. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(c)(2)(D) & (O); Fed. R. Evid. 611(a).

The Court has discussed the overall length of the trial with the parties. Considering that this is the first trial of the bellwether pools and the fact that the Court must begin criminal trials immediately following the conclusion of this trial, the Court has decided to set aside five weeks for the trial, which is a generous amount of time for this trial and is likely more than is necessary to complete the trial. Nonetheless, even if over generous, the Court believes allowing five weeks is prudent for the reasons mentioned.

The length of an average trial day in trials before the undersigned is 9.5 hours, with the day starting at 8AM and ending at 5:30PM. The first half hour is reserved for bench discussions on matters needing resolution by the Court. The remaining 9 hours is jury time. After accounting for a mid-morning, mid-afternoon, and lunchtime break, and allowing some additional cushion time, the actual time in trial with the jury each day is 7.5 hours. The Court reserves the right to extend any trial day if warranted in order to complete the trial within the trial period set.

In this case, 24 business calendar days have been set aside for the trial, which includes time for jury selection and opening statements on the first day and instructions and closing arguments on the last day. The Court does not intend to include those days in the time calculation, so the actual amount of charged time is 22 days. Thus, the Court allocates a total of one hundred sixty-five (165) hours to this trial.

The Court has considered the parties' positions on how this time should be allocated. Plaintiffs argue for a 60/40 split and Defendants argue for a 50/50 split.

The Court has decided that the time will be split 50/50, with each side having 82.5 hours to try their respective case, including a rebuttal case but excluding jury selection, openings, closings, and jury instruction.¹ As noted, in the Court's view, this amount of time is more than sufficient. This decision is based on the Court's decision to allow five weeks for the trial, instead of four, and to add an additional day to the trial. See Order Amending Order Setting Trial and Pretrial Schedule, ECF No. 1639. While the Court recognizes that there are multiple plaintiffs each having the burden to prove their individual claims, it is also the case that Defendants carry the burden of proof on their affirmative defenses, one of which will require considerable time. Also, while the Court recognizes that the science in this case is complex, both sides shoulder the responsibility of educating the jury on it.

Time will count against a side's allocation whenever it is questioning a witness, arguing an objection or other matters to the Court, or otherwise presenting its case, including motions for judgment as a matter of law. Time spent arguing evidentiary or other in limine matters after the final pretrial conference, including the Court's review of written submissions on such matters, will count against a side's allocation.² The Court also reserves the right to count the time spent following the start of the trial arguing jury instructions; i.e. the jury charge conference.

¹ The Court will be the official timekeeper and its clock will be the official clock. The Court will keep track of each side's time and notify counsel at regular intervals of the time used by each side.

² Time the Court spends reviewing written in limine submissions and hearing argument on such matters prior to or during the final pretrial conference will not count against a party's allocation.

If a party intends to read or play deposition testimony before the jury, this may require the Court to rule on objections to designated testimony. The reading of deposition testimony will, of course, constitute trial time. Time will count against a side's allocation for all testimony that side has designated to be read or played by video. The parties are directed to confer prior to the presentation of any deposition testimony to attempt to agree on how the time spent reading or playing the deposition should be allocated as between the parties. In this regard, the Court encourages the parties to do their best to pare down deposition testimony to significant and non-repetitive matters. In addition, all such time the Court spends before or during trial considering each party's objections to deposition testimony is time that would be spent in court were the witnesses being presented live. For this reason, that time will count against the side making the objection, unless and to the extent the Court determines that the party designating the objected-to testimony has designated testimony that has limited probative value, is otherwise unduly repetitive or cumulative, or is patently inadmissible on other grounds. In that event, the time spent by the Court considering the matter will count against the party that designated the testimony.

The allocation of 165 hours is subject to reduction based on rulings barring or limiting claims, precluding opinion witness testimony, and excluding or limiting evidence via in limine rulings and rulings made during trial. Additionally, the parties are forewarned that the Court may reduce a party's allotted time for, among other things, presenting unduly cumulative testimony or evidence or evidence of minimal probative value, or repeatedly making unwarranted objections to testimony or exhibits.

With regard to exhibits, the Court directs the parties to attempt to pare down their exhibit lists, resolve foundational objections to exhibits by stipulation or otherwise, and attempt to narrow objections to exhibits to the extent reasonably possible. This is in both sides' interest, as it will reduce the time needed for resolving objections at trial. The Court reserves the right to impose an overall limit on the number of exhibits introduced by each side.

Further particulars of the rules for time allocation may be addressed at or before the trial, although the Court will not reconsider the decisions outlined in this Order.

In addition, with one exception explained below, the Court will exercise its authority pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 611(a) to require that each witness be called only once and will not be recalled later in the case, except to rebut evidence offered later that the party wishing to recall the witness could not reasonably have anticipated. Consistent with this directive, there will be no restriction on the scope of cross-examination of a witness called by an adverse party. In addition,

Explore Litigation Insights

Docket Alarm provides insights to develop a more informed litigation strategy and the peace of mind of knowing you're on top of things.

Real-Time Litigation Alerts

Keep your litigation team up-to-date with real-time alerts and advanced team management tools built for the enterprise, all while greatly reducing PACER spend.

Our comprehensive service means we can handle Federal, State, and Administrative courts across the country.

Advanced Docket Research

With over 230 million records, Docket Alarm's cloud-native docket research platform finds what other services can't. Coverage includes Federal, State, plus PTAB, TTAB, ITC and NLRB decisions, all in one place.

Identify arguments that have been successful in the past with full text, pinpoint searching. Link to case law cited within any court document via Fastcase.

Analytics At Your Fingertips

Learn what happened the last time a particular judge, opposing counsel or company faced cases similar to yours.

Advanced out-of-the-box PTAB and TTAB analytics are always at your fingertips.

API

Docket Alarm offers a powerful API (application programming interface) to developers that want to integrate case filings into their apps.

LAW FIRMS

Build custom dashboards for your attorneys and clients with live data direct from the court.

Automate many repetitive legal tasks like conflict checks, document management, and marketing.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Litigation and bankruptcy checks for companies and debtors.

E-DISCOVERY AND LEGAL VENDORS

Sync your system to PACER to automate legal marketing.