(57) ABSTRACT

We have disclosed methods for monitoring the athletic performance of an individual. The methods may include receiving position data relating to geographical positions of the individual during an athletic activity with a global positioning satellite receiver, receiving performance data about the individual during the athletic activity with a performance monitor that is physically separate from the global positioning satellite receiver, displaying athletic performance information during the athletic activity based on the performance data received by the performance monitor, and correlating the performance data received by the performance monitor with the position data received by the global positioning satellite receiver.
