

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
AMARILLO DIVISION

JAMIE WAZELLE, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

TYSON FOODS, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

§
§
§
§
§
§
§
§
§
§

2:20-CV-203-Z

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Before the Court is Plaintiffs' Motion to Remand ("Motion") (ECF No. 13). For the reasons stated below, Plaintiffs' Motion is DENIED.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs were employees of Defendant Tyson Foods' meat-packing plant located in Amarillo, TX during the first half of 2020. ECF No. 1-14 ("First Amended Petition") at 9. As the COVID-19 pandemic swept across the United States, many states, including Texas, began to implement precautionary measures to slow the spread of the virus. Id. Effective April 2, 2020, Texas Governor Greg Abbott issued a stay-at-home order, but Plaintiffs allege they were required to continue to work at Tyson Foods' meatpacking plant. Id.

While working at the plant, Plaintiffs allege that they were exposed to and contracted COVID-19 — both before and after Governor Abbott's order. Id. at 10. Asserting claims for negligence, gross negligence, and wrongful death, Plaintiffs brought suit in Texas state court naming Ernesto Sanchez, Kevin Kinikin, and Farren Fernandez as defendants. ECF No. 1-3 at 9. Plaintiffs alleged these individuals "failed to fulfill their job duties to provide a safe working environment to Plaintiffs.” Id. Plaintiffs later amended their state petition to include Tyson Foods as a Defendant. First Amended Petition at 8.

On August 28, 2020, Defendants timely removed the case to this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1442(a)(1). ECF No. 1 at 4. On September 25, 2020, Plaintiffs filed their Motion to remand this case back to the 251st District Court, Potter County. ECF No. 13.

LEGAL STANDARDS

“Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, and absent jurisdiction conferred by statute, lack the power to adjudicate claims.” Lavery v. Barr, 943 F.3d 272, 275 (5th Cir. 2019) (internal quotations omitted). “Any ambiguities are construed against removal because the removal statute should be strictly construed in favor of remand.” Manguno v. Prudential Prop. And Cas. Ins. Co., 276 F.3d 720, 723 (5th Cir. 2002) (citing Acuna v. Brown & Root, Inc., 200 F.3d 335, 339 (5th Cir. 2000)).

The federal officer removal statute, however, must be liberally interpreted because of its broad language and unique purpose. Watson v. Philip Morris Companies, Inc., 551 U.S. 142, 147 (2007). The statute provides, in relevant part:

(a) A civil action or criminal prosecution that is commenced in a State court and that is against any of the following may be removed by them to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place wherein it is pending:

(1) The United States or any agency thereof or any officer (or any person acting under that officer) of the United States or of any agency thereof, in an official or individual capacity for or relating to any act under color of such office...

28 U.S.C. § 1442(a)(1) (emphasis added).

While courts are to interpret this statute liberally, the removing defendant still bears the burden of establishing a basis for federal jurisdiction. Winters v. Diamond Shamrock Chemical Co., 149 F.3d 387, 397 (5th Cir. 1998). In light of the 2011 Congressional Amendment to section 1442(a), the Fifth Circuit articulated a four-part test to determine whether federal officer removal is justified: (1) the party has asserted a colorable federal defense; (2) the party is a “person” within the meaning of the statute; (3) the party has acted pursuant to a federal officer’s directions; (4) and the charged conduct is connected or associated with an act pursuant to a federal officer’s directions. Latiolais v. Huntington Ingalls, Inc., 951 F.3d 286, 296 (5th Cir. 2020).

ANALYSIS

The Court finds Defendants have carried their burden to establish jurisdiction under the federal officer removal statute.

A. Defendants have asserted a colorable federal defense.

The well-pleaded complaint rule provides that federal jurisdiction exists only when a federal question is presented on the face of the plaintiff’s properly pleaded complaint. Caterpillar v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987). Consequently, the well-pleaded complaint rule usually bars defendants from removing to federal court when the only jurisdictional hook is a federal defense. See Louisville & Nashville R.R. Co. v. Mottley, 211 U.S. 149, 152 (1908).

But the federal officer removal statute is an exception. It permits an officer to remove a case even if no federal question is raised so long as the officer asserts a federal defense. Latiolais, 951 F.3d at 290. The asserted defense need not even be clearly sustainable. Id. at 297. Instead, “an asserted federal defense is colorable unless it is immaterial and made solely for the purpose of obtaining jurisdiction or wholly insubstantial and frivolous.” Id. “Certainly, if a defense is plausible, it is colorable.” Id.

In their notice of removal, Defendants raised two federal defenses. ECF No. 1 at 10–11. First, they argue that the Federal Meat Inspection Act (FMIA) expressly preempts plaintiffs’ state-law claims. Id. at 10. Second, the Defendants claim that there is conflict preemption between Plaintiffs' claims and President Trump's April 28 Executive Order paired with the Defense Production Act. Id. at 10–11.

The Federal Meat Inspection Act “regulates a broad range of activities at slaughterhouses to ensure the safety of meat and the humane handling of animals.” Nat’l Meat Ass’n v. Harris, 565 U.S. 452, 455 (2012). The FMIA contains an express preemption provision which reads:

“Requirements within the scope of this [Act] with respect to premises, facilities and operations of any establishment at which inspection is provided under . . . this [Act], which are in addition to, or different than those made under this [Act] may not be imposed by any State.”

21 U.S.C. § 678 (emphasis added).

In the Plaintiffs' view, the FMIA only expressly preempts state laws covering the inspection, handling, and slaughter of livestock for human consumption, so their common-law tort and wrongful death claims are not preempted. ECF No. 13 at 15.

Defendants emphasize the first portion of the provision, which prohibits state-law requirements “with respect to premises, facilities and operations.” Defendants also stress the Supreme Court has ruled that the Federal Meat Inspection Act’s preemption clause “sweeps widely.” Nat’l Meat Ass’n, 565 U.S. at 459.

In sum, Plaintiffs frame this case as a workplace safety issue that is not preempted by FMIA. Defendants frame this case as being about “sanitary conditions” and “disease control” which could be pre-empted by the FMIA. See, e.g., 9 C.F.R. §§ 416.5(b)–(c), 416.2(b).

Preliminarily, the Court takes note that the Supreme Court has held “that state laws of general application (workplace safety regulations, building codes, etc.) will usually apply to slaughterhouses.” Id. at 467 n. 10 (emphasis added). The word “usually” implies that sometimes the FMIA does preempt state workplace safety regulations.

This case is not a typical workplace injury case such as a slip and fall that falls outside of the scope of the FMIA's preemption provision. See, e.g. ECF No. 15 at 13–14 (collecting workplace-safety cases against Tyson Foods that proceeded in state court). Instead, this case arose in the unique context of a global pandemic. Workplace conditions and procedures related to disease prevention implicate food safety, which could bring Plaintiffs' claims under the ambit of the FMIA.

At this stage, the Court finds, without expressing any opinion on the merits, that preemption under the Federal Meat Inspection Act is plausible. And, as the Fifth Circuit has held, if the defense is plausible, it is colorable. Latiolais, 951 F.3d at 297. Accordingly, Defendants have satisfied the first prong of the Latiolais requirements.<sup>1</sup>

B. Defendants are “persons” within the meaning required in Section 1442.

The parties do not dispute that Defendants satisfy the second prong of the Latiolais test. Section 1442(a)(1) applies to “private persons,” Bell v. Thornburg, 743 F.3d 84, 89 (5th Cir. 2014) (quoting Watson, 551 U.S. at 143). And it applies to corporations. Latiolais, 951 F.3d at 291.

C. Defendants acted under a federal officer's directions.

Defendants must establish they were acting under the directions of a federal officer to satisfy the third prong under Latiolais. 28 U.S.C. § 1442(a)(1); Latiolais, 951 F.3d at 296.

Under section 1442(a)(1), a “private person's acting under must involve an effort to assist, or to help carry out, the duties or tasks of the federal superior.” Watson, 551 U.S. at 152. “Although the words ‘acting under’ are undoubtedly broad, the Supreme Court has clarified that they must refer to a relationship that involves acting in a certain capacity, considered in relation to one

---

<sup>1</sup> Because the Court holds that Defendants have a colorable defense under the FMIA, the Court does not address Defendants' second argument regarding conflict preemption with President Trump's Executive Order. The Court notes, however, that the Executive Order was issued after the primary allegations in the First Amended Petition.

Explore Litigation Insights

Docket Alarm provides insights to develop a more informed litigation strategy and the peace of mind of knowing you're on top of things.

Real-Time Litigation Alerts

Keep your litigation team up-to-date with real-time alerts and advanced team management tools built for the enterprise, all while greatly reducing PACER spend.

Our comprehensive service means we can handle Federal, State, and Administrative courts across the country.

Advanced Docket Research

With over 230 million records, Docket Alarm's cloud-native docket research platform finds what other services can't. Coverage includes Federal, State, plus PTAB, TTAB, ITC and NLRB decisions, all in one place.

Identify arguments that have been successful in the past with full text, pinpoint searching. Link to case law cited within any court document via Fastcase.

Analytics At Your Fingertips

Learn what happened the last time a particular judge, opposing counsel or company faced cases similar to yours.

Advanced out-of-the-box PTAB and TTAB analytics are always at your fingertips.

API

Docket Alarm offers a powerful API (application programming interface) to developers that want to integrate case filings into their apps.

LAW FIRMS

Build custom dashboards for your attorneys and clients with live data direct from the court.

Automate many repetitive legal tasks like conflict checks, document management, and marketing.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Litigation and bankruptcy checks for companies and debtors.

E-DISCOVERY AND LEGAL VENDORS

Sync your system to PACER to automate legal marketing.